PREFACE

PLASTER Relief Ornaments need no introduction to the Architects, Builders and Decorators of this country, same having been used by them to adorn the interior of buildings since the first introduction of the building arts from Europe, where said medium has been for two thousand years and is now very extensively employed to beautify private and public edifices internally as well as externally. The very luxuriously ornamented interiors of buildings erected during the Renaissance periods of the 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th centuries in Italy, France, Germany and England, were made possible by using this pliable, light material for executing the designs. Their beauty is unsurpassed to-day, their stability testified by past centuries. The modern buildings of to-day, built in Berlin, Paris, London, New York, are richly ornamented with Plastic Ornaments, cast in plaster for interiors, in cement composition for exteriors. All over the civilized world the material has found its place and is now recognized as the most adaptable, easiest applied and least expensive of mediums for executing ornamentation to beautify buildings.

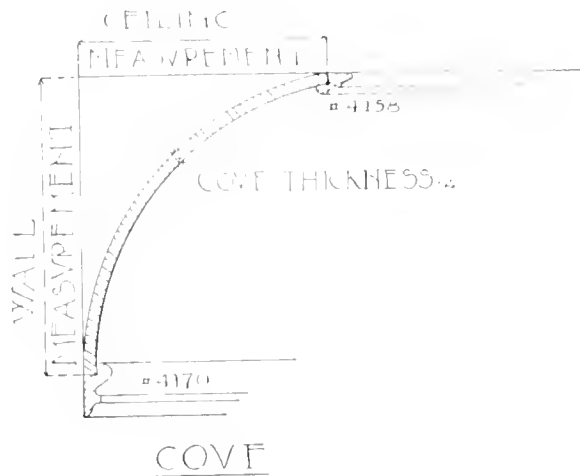

*This usage being well established and very rapidly on the increase in this country, we have taken the initiative to make it still much more popular by devoting years of exertion and study and the expenditure of capital to make and bring forward the largest, most diversified in design and size, as well as most artistic number of models, ready to be cast into ornaments, ever brought together by anyone in any country. The illustrations in this book of ornaments, here given, will easily bear out the foregoing statement. The forms of the designs underlying the carrying into execution the fine models, have been carefully studied and selected to meet the requirements of our designers and decorators, recognizing equally the beauty of the period or so-called styles of the past, as well as the diversified but not less beautiful forms of the present. We have endeavored to show quite a number of ceiling and wall decorations, complete for the aid of Decorators, and wish to advise all our customers to write us for special designs in all cases where their requirements are not met by our illustrations. Our facilities for furnishing finely executed designs are unsurpassed, our experience for over thirty years in ornamental designing in Europe and America furnishes the basis of our possibility in this direction. Aside from the multitude of models shown, we carry a large number of odd ones, of which we are glad to furnish designs upon application.

We are confident of having overcome all the difficulties, as well as the high prices, formerly connected with the using of this material for ornamenting houses, by making it possible for the Architects, Decorators and Contractors, without their making special designs, to furnish their clients with a high class of decorations, the cost of which does not include the great expenses for new models, and is therefore very moderate and easily within the reach of all Home-builders. Considered along with its stability which is on a par with all the rest of the solid building materials employed, and is not, like stencils, washed off with every retinting, our ornaments furnish the most economical artistic medium for decorating houses yet invented. Suffice to say, we are very confident that our efforts to supply the largely increasing demands for more richly ornamented houses will be appreciated by the Architects, Decorators and Homebuilders as being of service to them, and respectfully request that they specify our goods on their plans, giving their clients thereby the best at the least expense. We keep a very large stock of ornaments, cornices, mouldings, etc., on hand ready to be sent out at a day's notice. Our large establishment is on a very efficient basis, enabling us to ship even complicated orders on ten days' time. The ornaments illustrated in this book are manufactured in five materials, viz.:

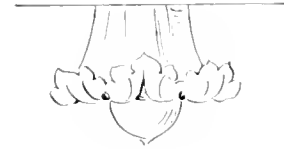

Portland Cement for exterior use; Exterior Composition to be applied on the outside of buildings; Fibrous Plaster Casts—used for interior enrichment of walls and ceilings; Compo Casts principally used for wall decorations; Wood Mouldings to be used in conjunction with interior ornaments. The application, character and use of the aforementioned materials is amply explained in the descriptions alongside the illustrations and further augmented on the instruction page 4. If, after careful perusal of our notes and review of our illustrations, you need any further information before ordering, please write to us. We are confident of being able to serve you and can always retain those as customers who have once given our goods a fair trial.

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.

*A testimonial for this statement is found in the universal employment of plaster ornaments for the enrichment of buildings for exposition purposes.

ELECTRIC LIGHT ROSETTE.

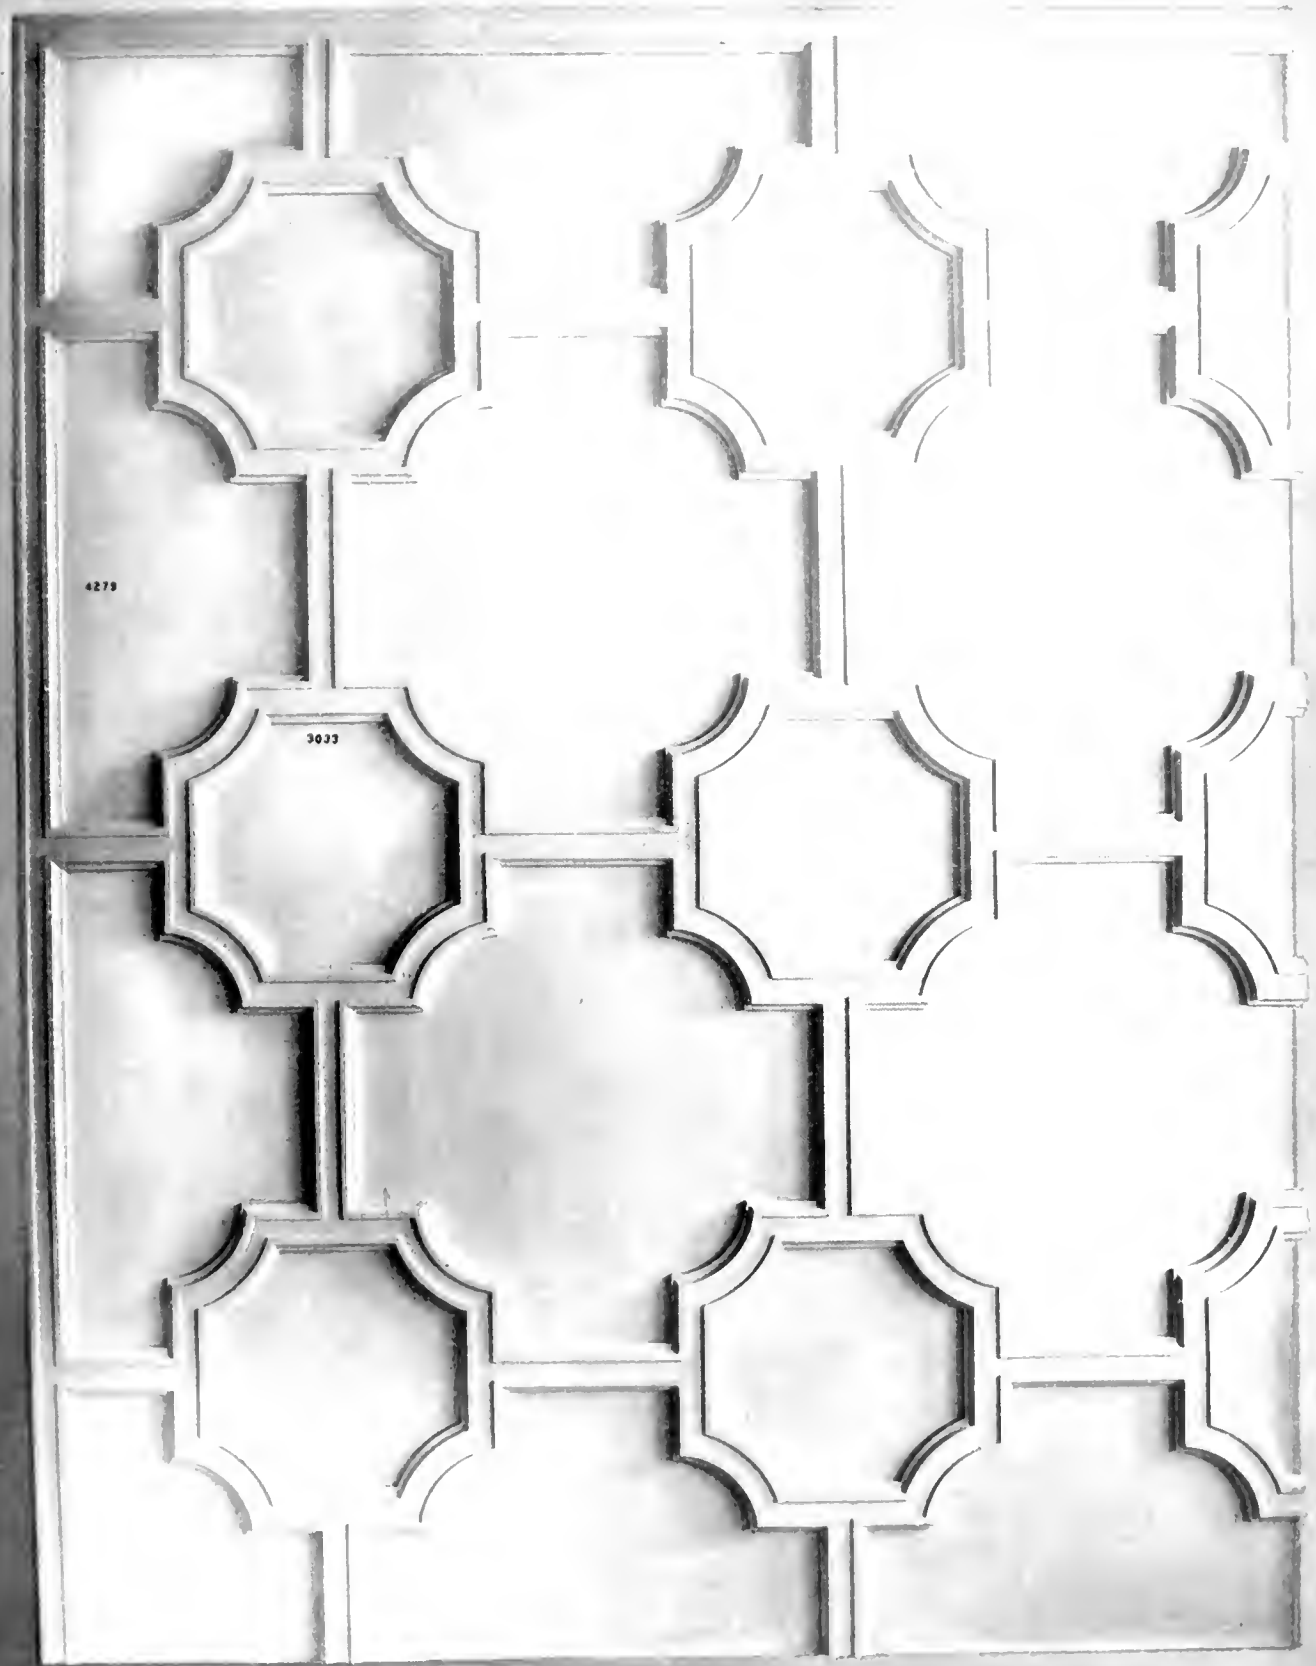

ELECTRIC LIGHT BULB

INSTRUCTION AND EXPLANATION

THE above illustration shows the section of a cove, finished on top or against the ceiling with a wood moulding, on the bottom or wall with a larger wood moulding, illustrating the exact position and finish of the cast cove against ceiling and wall, including the final finish with a wood moulding. In our illustration we have shown for top moulding No. 4158, for bottom moulding No. 4170, both being plain wood mouldings, inexpensive yet perfectly appropriate. Where no special moulding is mentioned in ordering coves with mouldings, we will ship those two kinds. We have shown the section of a bulb center, to illustrate the finish and outline of same in general; likewise the section of an electric-light rosette will show the position of our material in relation to the opening left for the electric-light bulb. In all cases where electric-light openings for bulbs are left in our casts we have mentioned same with gross size alongside of illustration. For special information regarding character, application and use of the different kinds of material and finish, see descriptions alongside of illustrations. For general enlightenment observe the following rules: Wherever prices are given for certain materials, the ornaments shown are furnished in those materials only. In our preface we refer to the five materials used in executing our designs—Portland Cement, Exterior Composition, Fibrous Plaster, Compo, Wood. Exterior Composition is material warranted to withstand the hardships of any climate, and should always be painted like exterior woodwork. The ornaments are either furnished open, free of groundwork, or with a solid background from $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 inch thick. In all cases mentioned, exact information is furnished on same sheet where illustration is shown. Nail or screw in place all exterior ornaments. Fibrous plaster casts are furnished either with or without background, thin cheesecloth ground, or on solid background averaging $\frac{1}{2}$ inch in thickness. The exact information for each article is found alongside its picture. Its application in general is as follows: All ornaments without ground should be pasted on wall surface with rye flour paste, made with boiling water; add $\frac{1}{2}$ pint of Venetian turps to every full pail of paste. After applying ornaments on surface, nail same with $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch long brads as an additional safeguard. Never paste on hard oiled surface, but always sandpaper hard oil off first, giving the wall surface the needed suction for cohesion. Ornaments cast on cheesecloth should be trimmed out first by cutting off with a sharp knife all the outer surplus of cloth not needed for a protection of the ornament—cut along outer ornamental outline. Where the cloth covers the entire width of surface, on friezes for instance, the trimming of the cloth may become unnecessary. Paste up the cloth background, same as the open ornaments, with rye flour paste, and nail same for further protection. Ornaments cast on solid background, as coves, friezes, panels or cornices, should be nailed or screwed upon wood or brick construction. On iron or tile construction fasten same with wire hooks or bolts, or, where the paster is strong enough, stick the ornaments with plaster after having scratched the surface of plaster where the ornament is to be applied. Compo casts are very sharp and imitate wood carving of the highest order in appearance. We furnish same plain or mounted on veneer wood background. The application of this material in either state is amply explained alongside the illustrations where same are shown. Wood mouldings are furnished either plain or ornamental, as shown on pages 89 and 91. The ornaments are compo, the wood always whitewood unless otherwise ordered. Mouldings are, of course, always nailed or screwed in place. The fine crevices, cracks or openings, between casts should always be pointed up with fine plaster of Paris, on interior ornaments. On exterior composition use oil putty after the first coat of paint has been applied. Where the above explanations are found insufficient, please write to us for further information, which will be furnished.

IN presenting this catalogue to the trade we wish to emphasize the fact that the kind of goods shown herein are only a small percentage of our production. As we embody the different articles we manufacture in separate catalogues we have refrained from illustrating any other in this book, and therefore mention here the different branches of our manufacture, viz.:

- 1st Portland cement furniture, mantels, fountains, etc.
- 2nd Exterior composition ornaments, capitals and brackets.
- 3rd Interior fibrous plaster in connection with plaster finish.
- 4th Interior composition in conjunction with wood work.
- 5th Grille work.
- 6th Electric lighting fixtures.
- 7th Complete ornamentation for interior and exterior of theaters.
- 8th Show window backgrounds.

Exterior composition is used very extensively for the ornamental features of buildings, and for that purpose has taken the place of much more expensive materials. It is very durable and easily applied. It combines with a very low price a very artistic finish. Its manifold uses for Capitals, Brackets, Cornices, Friezes, Panels, Arches, Shells and Gables fill a constantly increasing demand by the profession. We can refer to a great number of fine buildings beautified by us with this class of goods. We have shown in this book a great variety of ornaments adapted for exterior use and in all cases have given the price for them.

All Decorators and Architects now use plastic ornaments for the enrichment of interiors, and we have aimed in this book not only to show the illustrations of the ornaments but have shown the application on ceilings and walls on a great number of plates, to aid the Decorator to make a selection.

The interior decorations of public buildings, theaters, churches and residences of to-day require a great deal of relief ornamentation for its refined finish. The manufacture of these goods, made of fibrous plaster, forms a great part of our business. The immense possibility of this inexpensive material as a decorative medium has made it stand foremost in the minds of Architects searching for an ornamental finish at a reasonable cost. No up-to-date building can lay claim to any architectural or decorative prominence without a liberal use of this class of ornamentation in its interior. This part of our manufacture is immensely increasing as the nature of it becomes more and more understood.

The interior composition we have several times referred to, and shown in another catalogue, forms quite a part of our output. When properly applied and finished it will give exactly the same results as wood carving, having the same grain; when filled it represents any wood used, as oak, mahogany, birch, etc.; it would deceive an expert to distinguish the fine examples of this class of goods in our show rooms from wood carvings. Our thousands of models, running in style through all architectural periods known, enables us to make almost any conceivable design to imitate wood carving on interior wood work, such as windows and door trims, sideboards, consols, mantels, etc. The very fact that this material is so inexpensive has made it possible that almost any building has a liberal amount of this ornamentation distributed all over its interior wood finish. We cannot say too much of its merits as a decorative medium on wood work, and would like to invite the trade to make a trial with it in order to be convinced.

We have issued a special catalogue of fret or grille work, also one on capitals and brackets, and another for Electric Lighting Fixtures, which has stood the criticism of the best people using this class of ornamentation for beautifying houses. We would like it understood that we aim to manufacture these articles in any design and style to meet the general scheme of the interior decoration. We finish these goods in any color or wood. A fine grille is always a highly desirable ornamentation for openings between rooms. We justly lay claims to the distinction of being the foremost people in this country in the manufacture of these goods.

In conclusion we wish to state that our range of manufacture covers almost every conceivable relief ornamentation known to the art of architecture, except in stone and metal. For this class of work, we, however, furnish the models necessary.

We respectfully invite all interested in the ornamental arts of building to visit our establishment, to be convinced that we are the largest and most advanced manufacturers of relief ornamentation in its various branches in the United States.
